THOROUGH INSTRUCTION by Correspondence

Education in its more enlarged meaning is the development of one's faculties and formation of character. It may also be said that education literally is mental discipline, which develops the powers of the mind and enables it to acquire and grasp knowledge; and knowledge is unquestionably power, and power enables its possessor to attain the highest and widest influence, and influence brings honor, emolument and fame, and fame may lead to an immortal name.

DROPPED THE QUESTIONING. Examination to Horton-Butler Con-

There was a development in the Horton-Butler congressional contest yesterday that took the attorneys for the contestant by surprise and they dropped the line of investigation as if it had been a hot brick.

Adolph N. Eppenberg of No. 821 South Second street, a Republican election judge in the first precinct of the Sixth Ward, was the innocent cause of the discomfiture. Eppenberg had been on the stand for some time and had testified to a number of things that concerned the conduct of the election, none of which indicated that there had been the slightest fraud. He was about to tell what his explanation of the Republican defeat was when he mentioned omething about factions among the Republicans in his ward. Attorney Holtcamp sked him how he accounted for these factions

"What was your objection to the chair-man of the Congressional Committee," was "Well, we had heard that he was a train robber or express robber or something like that, and we didn't think he was the sort of man to lead a congressional campaign. The boys kicked like steers on it and that accounts for the factions we had in our ward."

Expendence was questioned no further

Handolph testified that he voted at No. 21st Market street, and that an election judge had tried to substitute a Democratic bailot in place of the one he voted, but that he detected the judge in the act and got the substituted bailot from him and made out another ticket, which he voted. He did not know the judge who had done the trick and could not identify him if he saw him at this time.

Thomas Watts, a Republican clerk in the eleventh precinct of the Fourteenth Ward testified that he had had charge of the registration in his precinct for the Republicans and also had canvassed the precinct to find if any illegal registration had taken place. He stated that he found none though there were some cases that he thought suspicious looking. He saw no fraud in the polling place at the election. MAYOR'S LIEUTENANTS SURPRISED.

Statistics prove that one of the great dangers of the Grippe is its bad after-effects, and weakening influence on the kidneys and urinary organs.

There are over 29,000 cases of grip in New York City alone, and the disease is most prevalent all over the United States. The virus or poison of this influenza produces a most damaging effect upon the mucous membranes of the whole system, and especially upon the kidneys, liver and disease experience such a depressed and weskened feeling, from which it seems almost impossible to fally recover. KANSAS WOMEN MAY LOSE SUFFRAGE.

Bill to Be Introduced in Legislature and a Bitter Fight on

REPUBLIC SPECIAL. Topeka, Kas., Jan. 12.-Representative Butler of Wyundotte County has brought down upon his head the wrath of the womn suffragists of Kansas. He is pushing a bill to repeal the woman suffrage act, and Mrs. Anna Diggs has sent an appeal to the women of Kansus to come to Topeka and help her save the law. The Mayor and Council of Beattle, in Mrashall County, are all women, and they will come here to fight

Butler's repealing act. County Auditor Carlisle of Wyandotte County drafted the bill and to-night made some sensational statements concerning the results from woman suffrage in Kansas.

"I do not hesitate to say that, in our city at least, the woman vote is one of the most corrupting influences in municipal politics. I don't mean that the women are corrupt or to imply that they lack capacity. No no. I believe them on an average more ntelligent than the men, but the manipulator is corrupt, and the woman vote can be manipulated.

"A party worker goes around to prevail upon the party women to register, and after many arguments and much persuasion a per cent of the women named on the poil as of the right political faith agree to reg-ister. Then a list is made of these, and a as of the right political faith agree to register. Then a list is made of these, and a worker and a hack call, and the woman, after more persuasion, is hauled off to be registered. That is not all the expense to the parity. When election day comes around other workers must scatter over the city, getting the registered women of the parity of fix a time when they will be ready to zo to the polis. More persuasion, then another worker and a hack come around. When it is all done it will be found that much persuasion and expense have succeeded in getting out a quarter or a half of the registration of the prisoner. getting the registered women of the party to fix a time when they will be ready to go to the polis. More persuasion, then another worker and a hack come around. When it is all done it will be found that much persuasion and expense have succeeded in getting out a quarter or a half of the registered vote, which was a quarter of the women cligible to register. But the vote is certain. You know just how it is going to go. It costs money, but you know what you've got when you have it."
